

“Name On Your Heart”

Written by: A. B. Acker
Copyright © 2007 BHR

As heard on Acoustic Blue’s recording “Workin’ Man”.

- 1) In the morning, I awake, the dawn is waiting,
All alone, the dreams of nighttime fly away,
The work of day is begun, with hesitation,
I long for sleep when I can see your face,

Chorus:

Little girl, the stones are all unturned now,
On the path we have chosen, now apart,
Have you forgotten, has your mind really learned how,
Or is my name still written on your heart,

- 2) Can you know, for the distance I have traveled,
There is no one, and nowhere I am safe,
And as my life passes time, it comes unraveled,
Every time that my memory sees your face,

Chorus:

Little girl, the stones are all unturned now,
On the path we have chosen, now apart,
Have you forgotten, has your mind really learned how,
Or is my name still written on your heart,

- 3) Somewhere in the darkness, you are waiting,
Somehow in the nighttime, you are there,
Some way in my dreams, you will be saying,
My name's, still written, on your heart

Chorus:

Little girl, the stones are all unturned now,
On the path we have chosen, now apart,
Have you forgotten, has your mind really learned how,
Or is my name still written on your heart,
Or is my name still written on your heart,